Description
The dashboard needs to be translatable. Any text that goes into the tooltip component will automatically be translated, all you need to do is add the T() marker, see Account Users for an example. In order to extract strings that are not in tooltips (either in the html or the ts files) you will need to pass them through the ngx-translate service, see examples from the login page or the admin bar. After they are passed through you should be able to run 'npm run extract' and the new keys will appear in the PO files. The volume manager will be translated in its own ticket
