Description

The action button for each group in Account/Groups allows adding or deleting members to a group, but does not show the group which is being edited. This makes it possible to mistakenly add members to a different group than is expected. The example attached is for the wheel group, although you'll have to take my word on that. The group should be shown at the top of the dialog. Where it only says Members now, just say "Members of {group} group".

Also, the arrow buttons for moving members to the left or right sides should be the same as the arrows used in the Create Pool screen.
